

100% NATURAL

It's natural for our Durham Ranch families to raise healthy animals humanely and sustainably. Durham Ranch Natural Beef comes directly from family ranches across the corn belt of America's Heartland. These families take great pride in growing cattle without the use of hormones or antibiotics.

The cattle roam on open pasture while grazing on grass and are finished on vegetarian-based grain silage. The result is a level of quality and consistency chefs and connoisseurs demand.

What is the feeding regimen?

Durham Ranch Natural Beef cattle are fed a 100% vegetarian diet from birth to harvest. All cattle receive a finishing ration containing Midwestern corn for a minimum of 120 days.

Are the animals ever given antibiotics as growth stimulants?

Durham Ranch Natural Beef cattle never receive antibiotics of any kind, from birth to harvest. If any animal in the Durham Ranch Natural Beef program becomes sick, they are removed, treated for illness, then sold separately outside of our Natural Beef program.

What does Durham Ranch do to ensure the animals are treated with respect?

100% of Durham Ranch Natural Beef cattle are raised and grazed in the U.S.A. They are hand-picked exclusively for our Natural Beef program. All cattle are processed at the only beef plant designed by Dr. Temple Grandin.

At what age are they harvested and why?

Most cattle in the Durham Ranch Natural Beef program are harvested younger than 30 months of age. This ensures consistency and exceptional quality in the resulting products from each harvest.

What is the weight of the animals at harvest?

The ideal weight of Durham Ranch Natural Beef cattle at harvest is 1,200 to 1,400 pounds.

What does the meat taste like?

Durham Ranch Natural Beef is guaranteed tender. Using only certified Black Angus genetics, the natural beef in our program is of superior quality and satisfies the most discerning of palates.
